PURCHASED BY

Mr. Editor,

KNOWING that there is a number of the most worthless of society, who make it a business to spread evil reports respecting the solvency of banks in the different parts of the United States, for the purpose of depreciating and purchasing their paper. I feel it is my duty to give a list of the Banks of the District of Columbia, that it may be made known to all persons in every part of the Union, that the said Banks do pay specie for their notes, on demand, and that they are justly entitled to the highest credit and standing, and that they are opposed to a suspension of specie payments, and will be the last in the country that will agree to such a measure. This communication is made to prevent imposition, and to inform all persons who may have the paper of those banks, in any part of the Union, that they may hold it as so much specie. Persons emigrating and travelling north, south or west, would do well by taking the notes of those banks, as they will always find them equal to specie, and often to command a premium of 5 to 10 per cent, for remittances to Baltimore, Philadelphia & New-York. To my numerous acquaintances (trading men,) and the community, I pledge myself for the foregoing.

The following are the banks of this district that pay specie for their notes on demand, viz:

The Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Georgetown,
Central Bank of Georgetown & Washington,
Union Bank of Georgetown,
Bank of Columbia,
Bank of the Metropolis,
Patriotic Bank of Washington,
Bank of Washington,
Bank of Alexandria,
Union Bank of Alexandria,
Farmers' Bank of Alexandria;
Bank of Potomac,
Branch Bank of the United States at Washington.

I hold myself responsible for the foregoing declaration to the public. Done at my Exchange Banking House, Bridge-street, Georgetown, this 26th day of May, 1819.

THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1819.

From the Philadelphia Register.

The following letter from capt. James Biddle of the United States ship Ontario, to his friend commodore Bainbridge, as being the correct statement of a transaction, in all its relations, highly interesting to our country, will be read with pleasure by every person of American feeling—and, as vindicating the rules and character of our naval service, we trust it will obtain the decided approbation of the department.

United States Ship Ontario,
New-York, May 19,

To Com. Bainbridge, Boston.

MY DEAR SIR.

You have seen that during my late cruize, I had a correspondence with Lord Cochrane upon the subject of a salute, in which reference was made to a ship formerly under your command. The transaction is one to which more importance has been attached than it merits—and as this unnecessary importance has arisen from misconception, permit me to relate to you all the facts, together with my view of the subject.

When I was first on my way to Chili, I often reflected upon the propriety of my saluting a flag which was not recognized by the government of the United States.—I was of opinion, that it was not strictly proper; but under all circumstances, I deemed it advisable; and, therefore, upon anchoring at Valparaiso, in Jan. 1818, I acquainted the Governor, that I would salute, if an equal number of guns would be returned. The governor informed me that some troops were stationed a few leagues from town, and that they might be put in motion in consequence of any unexpected firing at the fort; that he would send off to acquaint the military officer with my arrival, and that on the following morning he would notify to me when he was prepared to return my salute, which he would do, gun for gun. During the whole of the following day, I was accordingly prepared to salute, and expecting every moment a message from the governor. No message [illegible], did come—no salute was fired—nor was any satisfactory explanation ever made to me on the subject. The very least, therefore, I could do, under such circumstances was, to determine not to salute the fort at any subsequent visit. Still however, I would not omit any mark of personal civility to the Chilian officers, and, therefore, when Gen. San Matin visited my ship, I saluted him with 15 guns, and I saluted the Supreme Director with a like number of guns, upon his making a similar visit.

I returned from the Columbia River to Chili, with the determination not to salute where my offer had once been neglected; but still to cultivate friendly relations with the government wherever this point of honor was not concerned. With this disposition, on my arrival at Valparaiso, I paid a visit to the governor Don Luis de la Cruz, and also to Lord Cochrane, who during my absence had obtained command of the Chili squadron. Soon after visiting Lord Cochrane I received a letter from him, in which he begged to remind me, for the length of my services, he said must have made me aware of the fact, that ships of war when arriving in a friendly port, had ever been in the habit of saluting publicly—that there was only one exception within his remembrance, which was the American frigate Essex at Gibraltar, in 1802—she, abstained from saluting the flag of Lord Keith, the British Admiral, and Lord Keith felt it his duty to require the salute, or on refusal, that the Essex should forthwith quit the port, which latter alternative was embraced. The style of this letter was unexpected and offensive. From a desire to conciliate, I had overcome my feelings at the neglect of my own offer to salute. I had even paid the first visit to Lord Cochrane, personally a stranger to me. Instead of receiving a return of my visit from that officer, the first notice of it from him was a complaint of my not having first saluted him, accompanied by an intimation that if I did not comply, I should be expelled the port, as the Essex had once been for a similar neglect. It was impossible not to feel the arrogance of this pretention—but I determined not to suffer it to influence my good disposition towards the government of Chili.—In my answer to Lord Cochrane, therefore, I stated that I was aware it was usual upon the arrival of a vessel of war at a foreign port, to salute publicly—that it was my knowledge of this circumstance which had induced me upon arriving at Valparaiso, in the preceeding January, to acquaint the then governor with my arrival, and to inform him I would fire the customary salute if an equal number of guns would be returned—and that as my offer to salute was not accepted then, he would perceive the propriety of my declining to salute now. In a few hours I received a second letter from Lord Cochrane, saying he was not acquainted with the regulations of the government of the United States, and that if I would give my word and honor that it was the uniform practice of the American Commanders in chief, without regard to comparative rank or locality, to answer with an equal number of guns the salutes of all foreign ships of war, "he would give fresh orders for my salute being so returned"—but that as the practice of all other services with which he had communication, was to return from a flag ship two guns less to the salutes of ships of war not bearing a flag of corresponding rank, his instructions hitherto had been to that effect—and that an alteration of the customary mode of proceeding; so far as regards the United States, "must be regulated by the communication I might make on the subject."

The offensive style of his first letter I had not considered necessary to notice in my answer;—therefore had only replied that I declined saluting, and assigned my reasons for it; reasons which were obligatory upon me, and ought to have been satisfactory to him. My letter could not be misunderstood; and as lord Cochrane's second communication still implied the necessity of my saluting, it was necessary not only to repeat my intention not to salute at all, but to give him to understand that I would not suffer myself to be ordered out of port. My answer, therefore, was, that as I declined saluting altogether, it was not necessary to enquire whether a salute from the ship under my command should be answered by an equal or by a less number of guns; that a salute from a national vessel, upon arriving at a foreign port, was a matter of courtesy only; that it was entirely optional; that it was sometimes practised, it was often times omitted; that in respect to what he mentioned of the Essex, I thought he must be misinformed, since I was persuaded that my friend, capt. Bainbridge, who commanded the Essex in 1802, would not have permitted himself to be ordered out of port in the manner he had stated.* This produced from lord Cochrane a third letter, wherein he says, that my first letter, in which I stated that my visit to him was in my capacity of an officer of the United States, and was intended as an evidence of respect to the officer commanding the naval forces of Chili, had induced him to conceive there could be no intention of disrespect to the flag of Chili, in the omission of a salute, and the more so, as the very next sentence in that letter very candidly stated that I was aware it was usual on the arrival of a vessel of war of a foreign port, to salute publicly, and that it was my knowledge of this circumstance that had induced me upon arriving at the port in January last, to acquaint the governor I would pay the customary salute if an equal number of guns would be returned—he desires me to judge then his astonishment on receiving my written declaration, that my letter was intended to decline saluting altogether, and that therefore, it was not necessary to enquire whether a salute from the ship under my command should be answered by an equal or less number of guns. This he says is a public matter. But he desires me to judge of his private sentiments, when he finds me add that a salute from a national vessel, upon arriving at a foreign port is a matter of courtesy only—that it is entirely optional—that it is sometimes practised—it is oftentimes omitted—he says it is incontestible, that in no port of a civilized nation, are an equal number of guns returned by the power who may be saluted—that as to the incident noticed in his letter, he has not erred in fact, though he may have committed a mistake in incidental trifles, that he plainly perceives the awkward circumstances in which I am placed; that I myself could not regret them more than he did—that it would deprive him of what, previous to receiving my last letter, he should have deemed a pleasure, namely, of paying his respects to me, which now consistently he could not do, without such an explanation as shall reconcile the seeming contradiction of my public letters.

As to Lord Cochrane's private sentiments, I had as little to do with them as I had to do with his private character—with respect to the mode of all civilized nations of returning a salute, it was not the question between us, since, from the first, I declined saluting at all—and his regret at the awkward circumstances in which he perceived so plainly I am placed, is as ridiculous as it is vulgar.

Lord Cochrane affects to think he has convicted me of contradiction. It will, I think, be perceived he has not done so. I repeat that it is usual to salute, but as a matter of courtesy—that it is entirely optional with the man of war. Since there is no power in a government to compel a foreign man of war to salute—that a salute is sometimes practised, that it is oftentimes omitted. The opinion advanced by Lord Cochrane, that it is an insult to the flag of the port for a foreign man of war to omit to salute, is perfectly absurd—nor would any officer, conscious he himself merited any respect from others, or who knew the respect he owed to himself, ever make a disturbance upon such a matter. Equally absurd is it to suppose that a government has a right to order a foreign man of war out of port for omitting to salute.

Lord Cochrane speaks of the practice of all other services with which he has had communication, and says he is not acquainted with the regulations of the government of the United States—but the very circumstance, that a government has a right to regulate its own mode of answering salutes, makes it manifest that it cannot be obligatory upon a man of war to salute—that it must be optional with her to salute or not, as she sees fit.

I considered the letter of Lord Cochrane as so vulgar and indecorous, that I could not answer it to him—and, therefore, I wrote to the Supreme Director, to acquaint him, that, upon my arrival, I had visited the Governor and the officer commanding the naval forces, and that both visits were intended as testimonies of respect towards the public functionaries of Chili: that, on the following day, the Governor had visited me on board, and I recognized in his frank deportment and prompt return of my visit, a disposition corresponding with that which I had uniformly manifested in my several visits to the port—that, with respect to the conduct of Lord Cochrane towards me, I felt a delicacy in commenting upon it to him—and, with respect to my own conduct towards Lord Cochrane, I did not deem it necessary or proper to discuss it—that these were matters for communication with my own government; and that the object of my letter, was to assure him, that upon my arrival, my conduct had been respectful towards the officers with whom I had communicated, and that I trusted he would not readily be persuaded to believe I had been wanting, in these respects, towards the officers of the government of Chili.

The commanding officer of the naval forces had now informed me that, he would not return my official visit, and had endeavored to dragoon me into saluting. It was therefore, proper, as the the flag had not been treated with proper respect, that I should not remain in Valparaiso longer than was indispensable. This consideration, and this alone, determined me to relinquish my intended journey to Jt. Jago, to take on board the supplies necessary for the continuance of my voyage; and to sail without delay. Being ready to sail on the 30th of December, and about to get under weigh, I received a letter from Lord Cochrane, saying, that in consequence of the friendly disposition I had professed towards the government of Chili, and the ties of amity which he trusted would long subsist between the United States and that state: he had to request of me, as the officer commanding a ship of war in the port, that I would abstain from proceeding to sea until the squadron which was under sailing orders should have weighed. I answered that to enable me to say, whether it would be in my power to comply with his request, I desired he would inform me at what hour the squadron would actually sail. He replied that part of the squadron would weigh immediately, and the remainder as soon as practicable; not being later than the next evening before dark. I wrote to him, that although it was important to me to proceed to sea without delay, and I was anxious to have sailed that morning, yet, from the desire I felt to meet the wishes of the government of Chili, as far as was in my power, I had concluded to remain in port that day but that it would be my indispensable duty to sail the next day, and proceed upon my further destination; that I hoped the delay of a day would be sufficient; and indeed, as my destination was round Cape Horn, my sailing would not, I should think, in any manner affect the views of the squadron. It should be remarked that just as I received Lord Cochrane's first letter, requesting me to remain in port, the frigate San Martin slipped her cable, and stood out in the offing; the Chacabuco sloop of war, also stood out. The San Martin anchored several miles out—the Chacabuco returned at night, and anchored so close to us, that I expected the two ships would get foul. In the morning, the Chacabuco again got under weigh, to stand out; and the San Martin was also under weigh. These manœuvres, and the character of Lord Cochrane, induced me to believe, that there was a design to intimidate us from sailing, or to attack us, if we attempted to go to sea. I did not choose to be driven from my purpose by either of these intentions. In the morning, therefore, at 10 o'clock, having cleared ship for action, I weighed and stood out to sea, passing near the San Martin and the Chacabuco. They offered no molestation, but soon after returned into port.

The conduct of these ships satisfied me, that Lord Cochrane had no intention to endeavor to detain me by force. I had informed him the preceding day of my determination to sail—and did sail accordingly. Yet his own frigate, the Maria Isabella, made no movements, nor did the frigate Lautaro, although I got under weigh from within 100 yards of both, under a light breeze. In fact the publication in the Chili Gazette seems conclusive on that subject. It states that as the sudden departure of the Ontario from Valparaiso had excited various rumors, the literal correspondence between the Admiral and Captain Biddle is published for the satisfaction of all. The rumors there were probably as absurd as they have been here—and to put an end to them it is published, that difficulties had occurred between Lord Cochrane and myself about a salute—and that afterwards Lord Cochrane had requested me to remain in port, which I had declined doing and had sailed. My own belief is, that the object of his movements was to overawe us by the force of his squadron, and induce us to remain from the fear of being attacked.

In thus leaving Valparaiso, I violated no duty whatever to the government of Chili. Lord Cochrane had no right to detain an American man of war until his ships could be ready for sea. In point of fact they did not sail until two weeks after my departure. Was I bound to delay executing the orders of my government, by wasting that much time at Valparaiso? My destination too was in a course directly opposite to that of his squadron. How then could my sailing in any way interfere with the pojects of his squadron? An instance much stronger than this, had occurred in the previous December at Lima. Just as the Spanish expedition was about sailing against Chili, an English frigate was on the point of leaving Lima for the same place. The government of Lima requested her commander to defer his sailing. This he refused, because he had not been treated with proper respect in the port. Yet, although the frigate would obviously carry, and did actually carry to Chili, the first intelligence of the expedition preparing against it, yet the government of Lima made no effort to detain her by force.

With regard to personal civility, so far from repelling advances from Lord Cochrane, it will be seen that I rather waved than insisted on rigid rules of ceremony. My own opinion of the usage on such occasions, founded on more than nineteen years experience in the navy is this: on anchoring in the foreign port where there are men of war, the man of war of the port sends an officer on board with a message of civility, and offers of assistance, &c. The commander of the foreign ship then makes a visit, which is returned by the commander of the man of war of the port—and an intercourse is thus opened, which is improved or not according to the disposition of the parties. Although this is the most usual course, yet it is not always pursued, either from inadvertence, from an opinion that these matters are in themselves of small importance, or from a difference of sentiment as to its propriety. Sometimes a man of war, upon her arrival, sends in the first instance to the man of war of the port an offer to salute, on condition of receiving gun for gun: but this course is not frequent nor is it in my opinion, the most correct, though it is not in any way exceptionable.

Up to the date of my sailing from the United States, you know, we never had any regulations about salutes in the navy. But to confirm my opinion on this subject I can state, that immediately on my arrival at Rio Janeiro, an officer came on board with the compliments of the Portuguese admiral and the offer of any assistance I might want. When beating into Callao, the Spanish commodore sent his first lieut. on board before I had anchored, with compliments of congratulation on my arrival and offers of assistance. In this deportment I recognized the character of officers and of gentlemen. To both of them I paid a visit the day following, and my visit was in due course returned. To neither of them did I pay the compliment of firing a salute, though at both places I saluted the forts, previously ascertaining it would be returned gun for gun. Upon my arrival at Valparaiso, Lord Cochrane neither visited me himself, nor did he send on board any message of civility. Although I was not unmindful that the advances towards an intercourse between us should most properly come from him, yet I waved this consideration as not being very important, and I paid a visit to Lord Cochrane. Did he return my visit? No; but in two hours after I received his letter reminding me of a part of my duty, which he thought I had been long enough in the navy to know, and insinuating, that if I did not fire a salute, he would turn me out of the port. Had Lord Cochrane returned my visit, and in the manner of a gentleman requested of me to salute, he might perhaps have obtained by civility what he certainly could not have extorted; for I trust I shall ever continue so much like yourself and the rest of my brother officers, as not to be dragooned by Lord Cochrane or by any other lord, or by any other man, into a conduct which might bring down reproach upon our flag. In fact, had I been undecided about saluting, the very letter of Lord Cochrane, calling upon me in such a style for a salute, would have determined me to refuse it.

It has been suggested, as a motive of Lord Cochrane's conduct, that there were on board the Ontario passengers attached to the royal cause, and also a million of dollars. The whole sum on board was two hundred and one thousand dollars, received at Lima, of which 15,000 were for Archibald Gracie & Sons of New-York, 15,000 for Mr. Astor of N. York—11,000 for Mr. Ellery, of Boston—and the remainder was shipped by individuals in Lima, and consigned to individuals in Rio Janeiro.

With regard to the passengers attached to the royal cause, they were two merchants, one lady, and one officer. To these two last, I had consented to give a passage, at the earnest solicitation of the vice king of Peru. I did so, because the vice king had yielded to my earnest solicitation for the release of two American ships, the Beaver and the Canton, and because he had, as a personal favor to myself, restored to liberty many of our unfortunate countrymen, whom I found in the prisons of Lima, for having been taken in arms against the royalists. Not to have granted so slight a request, in return for such signal favors to my fellow citizens, I should have deemed a total want of feeling and generosity—nor could I ever have anticipated, that whilst I was subjecting myself to the inconvenience of having strangers on board my ship, as a return for benefits conferred on my countrymen, I was laying the foundation of reproaches against me.

The circumstances of having a Spanish officer on board my ship, and the special reasons which induced me to receive him, are stated in my detailed report of the cruise to the secretary of the navy, made immediately on my arrival in the United States.

In maintaining the intercourse which my duty required with the conflicting parties in South America, it was difficult to avoid exciting the jealousy of one or both of them. Knowing the popular sentiment of this country, and seeing many of our citizens actually engaged in hostilities against them, the royalists were particularly disposed to consider us as inimicable to them. A conduct at once respectful and conciliatory towards them was due to the neutrality of our government, and was no less essential to enable myself to act with effect in procuring the release of the property and persons of my fellow citizens in the power of the royal government. To this conduct I owe the success which attended my endeavors to serve my country.

Very sincerely,
Your friend and obedient servant,
——— J. BIDDLE.

The ship Liverpool, M'Lellan, arrived at Portland from Liverpool, brings dates from that place to the 12th April.

Liverpool Markets, April 12.

Cottons have been in good request throughout the week, and a partial improvement may be noted in Boweds and N. Orleans—sales of which have been effected at 1s 4 per lb. above the previous currency. Brazils and other descriptions, though in fair demand, have not varied. The transactions of the week are estimated at upwards of 10,000 bags, viz: 1450 New-Orleans, at 12d a 15½d; 190 Sea Islands, 2s 1 a 2s 4, up to 3s for good; 3600 Boweds, 12d a 13½d.—The total quantity imported into Liverpool during the last three months, 118,179 bags being an increase compared to the first three months of 1818, of 25,513 bags.

NOTE.

* The following extract of a letter from commodore Bainbridge to captain Biddle, will prove how totally without foundation is the story of lord Cochrane:

"On my anchoring at Gibraltar in 1802, where admiral sir James Saumerez, and not lord Keith, was the commanding naval officer, I did not salute the admiral's flag, because it had been saluted in sight of the Essex a short time previous, by the frigate Boston, captain M'Neil, my senior in rank. And as the admiral did not offer to the ship under my command, the usual ceremony to ships of war, on entering a friendly port, no acquaintance took place between us during my then stay at Gibraltar. But on my return again to the Rock, admiral sir Js. Saumerez sent on board the Essex, and offered the customary civilities. I then waited on him, and a friendly intercourse followed—but no salute was given by the Essex to his flag, nor is there the least shadow of truth in my being required to salute any admiral's flag at Gibraltar, or on non-compliance thereof to leave the port. Such a demand I should have considered absurd in the extreme."

Bulletin.

To all whom it may concern these PRESENTS come greeting:

WHEREAS one of the brokers of George town, has, in the plenitude of assumption, issued a kind of mock manifesto, designating by his dictum, those banks in the District of Columbia which pay specie for their notes: and, like another Atlas, has taken on his shoulders the burden of their responsibility.

And whereas the aforesaid personage has, without conferring with the banks in Alexandria, "considered it his duty" to pronounce on them his opinion: and in so doing has either wilfully or ignorantly excluded the Mechanics' Bank from his list of "banks paying specie"

Now these are to certify, (the aforesaid Broker's proclamation notwithstanding,) that, in addition to the Alexandria, Potomac, Farmers' and Union Banks, (which have, under the most severe pressure from the brokers on the other side, invariably and constantly retired their notes by drafts on the NORTH, or with specie) that the Mechanics' Bank has resumed specie payment.

"We hold ourselves responsible for the above declaration to the public.

Done and perfected at our office, corner of Prince and Fairfax streets, this second day of June, Anno Domini 1819, and in the first era of our vocation.

Lectures

ON THE RUNNING HAND,

Price 3 dollars for seven lectures, each two hours at the Writing Room, next door to the Marshall's Offie, Washington street.

IMMEDIATELY after a former advertisement, I engaged a sufficient number of scholars, and have since refused the applications of many, because they applied too late to go through the whole course of writing on the different Hands. But to meet the wishes of many, I propose to give lectures on the Running Hand only during the remaining ten days that my engagements elsewhere permit me to continue in this place. And notwithstanding the statement may appear extravagant and even impossible to many who know nothing about it, yet is a fact that not only in 12 or 14 hours, but even in 4 hours, I will produce a change in a person's writing from a cramped, slow, slovenly hand to an easy, free, neat running hand, entirely different from the former one. Those who please may try the experiment. Besides acquiring the running hand perfectly and permanently, each gentleman will be taught the true method of making, holding the pen, sitting at the writing desk, &c. Specimens of the running hand acquired in a few hours may be seen at the writing room.

ALSO FOR SALE, AS ABOVE,

The Self-taught Penman

Tanyard Again.

THE sale of the tanyard, near the stone bridge, on the western extremity of Alexandria, advertised to take place on the 12th inst. was postponed. It will positively be offered at public auction on the premises, on TUESDAY the 15th of next month, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, under the authority of a deed of trust from Elisha Talbot and Daniel McPherson to the subscriber, to secure the payment of a sum of money to Archibald McClean.

This valuable property, and elegant stand for the tanning business, will be sold, subject to the claim of Mordecai Miller for $6500, with what interest shall be due thereon, unless otherwise declared on the day of sale. The terms of sale & other arrangements will then be made known. JONAH ISABELL, Trustee.

Public Sale.

UNDER the authority of a deed of trust from Thomas Cook and wife, to secure a debt due to A. Faw, the subscriber will offer at public sale, on FRIDAY the 2nd of July, at 4 o'clock, P. M. for cash, a two story brick tenement and lot of ground, on the north side of Prince-street, about 20 feet 7 inches and a half to the west of Henry-street, in front on Prince-street 20 feet 7½ inches, in depth 84 feet. By order of the trustee. S. A. MARSTELLER.

Public Sale.

BY virtue of a deed of trust from Daniel McPherson and wife to the subscriber to secure to the Mechanics' Bank of Alexandria the payment of a debt due from John McPherson and Son, will be sold at public sale on the premises, on THURSDAY, the 10th day of June next, a certain tract of land, known by the name of ROUND-HILL, in the county of Fairfax, lying on both sides of the Colchester road, adjoining the lands of George Triplett, Dr. Richard Mason, and others, containing 164¼ acres, be the same more or less. This land is handsomely situated, and has lately received considerable improvements. Few farms of its size in the county, perhaps, present higher inducements to a tasteful proprietor.

The terms are one-fourth cash, and the remainder in three equal instalments at 12, 18 and 24 months, with interest from the day of sale. W. VEITCH, Trustee.

April 29 thstotJ10

Public Sale.

ON the 9th DAY of JULY next, at 12 o'clock of that day, by virtue of a deed of trust, we will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, on the premises, that very valuable tract of land in Fairfax county, near Holmes's Run, and about four miles from Alexandria, generally known by the name of containing about 116 acres. This land is about one half in wood—the balance cleared, and in cultivation, with convenient buildings on it, and excellent water near them. A considerable proportion of the open land is fertile, and well calculated for timothy meadows.

The sum of $2,254 77 cts will be required to be paid in cash; for the residue a credit of twelve months will be given from the day of sale, the purchaser paying interest thereon, and giving satisfactory security for the punctual payment thereof. A conveyance will be made when the purchase money and interest is all paid up. If the terms of the sale should not be complied with by the purchaser, the premises will be immediately re-sold to the highest bidder, at the risque of the person to whom it shall have been struck off; and the same course will be repeated until an effectual sale shall have taken place.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be goverued by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25

100 Dollars Reward.

IS known to have been kidnapped from a field near Germantown, between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock, on the 30th ult. whilst at work alone, a Free Black Man, named HENRY HUDSON, aged between 21 and 22 years, of the height of five feet five inches, very black complexion and dark eyes, has a scar under his left arm, between the wrist and elbow, occasioned by the cut of an axe.

He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.

He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.

Any information respecting him will be thankfully received. Keepers of turnpike gates, toll bridges, and taverns, are particularly requested to give such information as may be in their power.

The above reward will be cheerfully paid on conviction of the perpetrators of this flagrant outrage upon the rights of a freeborn citizen of the United States.

Exchange & Broker's Office,

Georgetown, District of Columbia.

ROMULUS RIGGS,

AT his office, next door below Crawford's tavern, Bridge-st. Georgetown, will exchange all kinds of Bank Notes on the most reasonable terms.—All persons who may have notes on the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, would do well to call on him, as he is largely in the purchase of that kind of money, and will take it on the most reasonable terms.—Persons travelling to the Western Country may at all times get the Bank Notes of the Western Banks at a fair discount, by calling at his Office. For the information of all persons throughout the U. States, R. Riggs makes it known, that all of the Banks of the District of Columbia pay their notes on demand in specie; and it would be much to the advantage of the merchants, and trading to the South and west, to encourage the circulation of the Notes of the Banks of Georgetown, Washington and Alexandria, as it will at all times answer for remittances to the large commercial and Atlantic towns;—all persons emigrating or travelling to the westward should be very particular and take the Notes of the Banks of the District of Columbia, as they will find them the most current, there being no counterfeits on the District Banks. The Merchants' Bank of Alexandria has long since failed—all persons should be on their guard, as they will be imposed on. August 18
